I. Executive summary

The Special Investigation Team has begun its equity audit and investigation on behalf of the Commonwealth of Virginia concerning the Virginia Military Institute. So far, the Team has begun gathering information through several meetings with VMI senior leadership, interviewing alumni, and reviewing and assessing documents. The Team stands ready and has performed the preparatory work required to undertake the substantive steps that will form the heart of its review, such as: interviews of cadets, faculty, and administration; distribution of a survey to cadets, faculty, administration, and alumni; cadet focus groups; collection and examination of documents; and on-post visits. But factors beyond the Team's control have slowed our progress significantly. As a result, the substance of the Team's findings will come in future reports.

II. Commencement of work

The request for proposal for this audit originally anticipated that the contract would be awarded in mid-December 2020. But various issues relating to the bid delayed the final award, and the contract between the Commonwealth and Barnes & Thornburg could not be signed until January 7, 2021. Nevertheless, before the signing of the contract, the Special Investigation Team from Barnes & Thornburg began preparing for the audit. For example, the Team began developing a survey, preparing materials for interviewing cadets, alumni, and faculty, reviewing publicly available background information, and setting up a hotline for receiving information from the VMI community.

Since the contract's execution, the Team has met virtually with VMI's leadership several times, started conducting alumni interviews, submitted document requests to VMI, prepared a draft survey, and begun reviewing documents produced by VMI. The Team has also planned for on-post visits. But as detailed further below, the Team's work has been delayed by procedural issues, including issues relating to the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA), the surprise involvement of VMI counsel McGuireWoods LLP, the reassignment of that role to Eckert Seamans Cherin & Mellott LLC, and VMI's and Eckert's repeated requests that VMI's counsel participate in the Team's interviews. All of this has consumed valuable time that the Team could have spent on conducting substantive fact-finding work.

This preliminary report does not include findings or recommendations. While the Team has begun conducting interviews and developing a fact record, much more must be done before the Team can begin to draw conclusions and prepare recommendations. The Team will achieve this through various means, in particular survey results, a fuller set of interviews of diverse groups of VMI stakeholders, focus groups, and a fuller review of the document record.

III. Meetings with VMI's leadership

The Team had its first introductory meeting with VMI leadership on January 15, 2021. The purpose of this videoconference was for leadership from the Team to meet VMI's leadership and to begin coordinating for the audit. The VMI leadership team included Major General (U.S. Army Ret.) Cedric Wins (VMI '85), the interim superintendent; Brigadier General Dallas Clark (VMI '99), the deputy superintendent for finance, administration, and support; Colonel Jamie Inman (VMI '86), the chief of staff; and John "Bill" Boland (VMI '73), president of VMI's Board of Visitors. Richard Cullen, a senior partner at the law firm McGuireWoods, also attended and was presented as "VMI Counsel."

On January 21, the Team held the first of what will be weekly teleconferences with VMI leadership; the purpose of these meetings is to focus on coordinating the audit's logistics and on developing an open channel of communication between the Team and VMI. This meeting included MG Wins, BG Clark, COL Inman, Mr. Boland, and Mr. Cullen, as well as two additional members of VMI's staff: Lt Col (U.S. Air Force Ret.) Sean Harrington (VMI '94), who is the secretary to the Board of Visitors, and COL Lee Rakes, who is VMI's director of institute assessment and evaluation.

During this meeting, the Team and VMI's leadership discussed how to conduct interviews of current cadets in a way that encourages the cadets to speak candidly to members of the Team, particularly on sensitive issues relevant to this audit, such as instances of racially motivated conduct. Given the distinctive environment of a military college, the Team would like to take all possible steps to ensure that cadets are comfortable disclosing information about relevant conduct without fear that disciplinary action, including Honor Court proceedings, might result. VMI and the Team have agreed to collaborate on a joint statement to be provided to current cadets and the VMI community that will encourage the full and frank disclosure of information to the Team.

The Special Investigation Team also coordinated with VMI so that VMI's leadership could present an overview of VMI to the Team. This presentation was originally scheduled for January 22, but VMI cancelled the meeting that morning after the Team objected to the presence of VMI's counsel McGuireWoods at the briefing, which was announced to the Team's surprise around close of business the day before the meeting. Some discussion ensued about whether McGuireWoods could represent VMI in this investigation. The following week, VMI agreed to provide the presentation to the full Special Investigation Team on January 28, in the presence of members of the Office of the Attorney General. Led by MG Wins, VMI's leadership—this time also including BG Bob Moreschi, the dean; Gene Scott (VMI '80), a member of the Board of Visitors; and CPT Mary Schriver (VMI '14), the assistant director of admissions—gave a presentation about VMI. The presentation covered VMI's mission, the importance of its honor code, the structure of its military experience (including both its class system and its regimental system), the success of its graduates, its success in various college rankings, and its history.

During the presentation, the VMI leadership team explained some VMI jargon, including terms such as “rat” (what a freshman is called before being recognized as a fourth class cadet), the “dyke system” (which refers to the relationship between a senior cadet and his or her rat/fourth class mentee), being “drummed out” (being dismissed from VMI for having violated the honor code), and “sweat parties” (intense physical training sessions for rats). They also explained some recent changes that VMI has made to focus less on the Institute’s role in the Civil War and more on other armed conflicts that VMI graduates fought in. For example, the presenters noted VMI’s recent removal of the statute of Lieutenant General Thomas “Stonewall” Jackson and that VMI was currently in the process of re-evaluating its Civil War-era iconography. The presentation also highlighted the heroism of graduate Jonathan Daniels (VMI ’61), who was killed saving the life of an African-American teenager during a civil rights conflict in 1965. The presentation also acknowledged that over the years there has been tension between cadets who are NCAA athletes and the rest of the corps of cadets.

During the presentation, MG Wins explained that since he took the position of interim superintendent roughly two months prior, he had taken time to assess the current environment at VMI. For example, he had engaged in listening sessions with various segments of the corps of cadets, including a session with the Promaji Club, which is a club that supports minority groups within the corps of cadets. Based on this assessment period, MG Wins intends to focus during his tenure on five areas to shape VMI’s strategy as an institution. The five areas he selected were (1) a commitment to honor, (2) the VMI brand, (3) diversity and inclusion, (4) a commitment to winning, and (5) an approach MG Wins referred to as “One VMI.”

Following the formal presentation, members of the Special Investigation Team asked questions to help them understand the cadet environment, including how disciplinary actions and honor proceedings occur, how the class system and the regimental system work together, how VMI approaches recruiting, what the racial and gender makeup of the faculty is, and how the ROTC program integrates into VMI’s military system.

IV. Interviews

The Special Investigation Team intends to interview three primary categories of individuals in the course of this audit: current cadets, members of the faculty and administration, and alumni. The Team has assigned certain of its members to focus on each of these three categories. The Team will track these interviews and the information obtained during these interviews, but the interviewees’ identities will be kept confidential. Specifically, the Team’s reports will not name individuals unless the individual expressly requests that his or her name be included. Of the three sets of interviewees, the Team has begun interviewing members of the alumni community (including those who have reached out to the Team directly) but has not yet interviewed any VMI current cadets or personnel.

A. Current cadets and faculty and administration

While the Team is prepared and has requested to interview current VMI cadets and employees, the Team has not yet been able to proceed with interviews of cadets, of faculty and administration, or of members of the Board of Visitors. This delay has occurred because VMI has declined to permit the Team to have access to these individuals until VMI has secured (ultimate) outside counsel, worked out issues relating to privacy protections under federal law (specifically, FERPA), and settled the issue of who will be present in the interview room (discussed below). Similarly, while the Team has also attempted to schedule an in-person visit to VMI, VMI has declined to allow the Team access to post until these issues have been resolved. VMI otherwise has welcomed the Team to post and has committed work with the Team through related logistical issues (such as scheduling and COVID-19 protocols) once the issues above are resolved.

B. Alumni

The Team has begun virtual interviews of VMI alumni. Some of these interviews have been with alumni who have reached out to the Team and indicated a willingness to be interviewed, or whom others have suggested we contact (or both). The Team will continue interviewing alumni in an effort to hear from a larger percentage of and a diverse opinion base from the VMI community. As of the date of this report, the Alumni team has reached out to, interviewed, or scheduled interviews with approximately two dozen alumni.

C. The conduct of interviews

One major issue the Team is working through with VMI, the State Council of Higher Education for Virginia (SCHEV), and the Office of the Attorney General is whether representatives from VMI will be present during interviews. VMI has asked several times that it be allowed to have VMI representatives (including counsel for VMI) present during interviews of current cadets and employees. But the Team firmly believes that the presence of VMI representatives will undermine the independence and effectiveness of the investigation and may well deter the cadets and faculty being interviewed from being as forthcoming as they might otherwise be. This also violates fundamental investigative best practice, as it allows the subject of an investigation to “shadow” the progress of an investigation and potentially to steer its course and results. The Team makes this judgment based on its extensive history in conducting internal and external investigations of many different kinds of organizations. Further, the Team will be not able to guarantee confidentiality to the interviewees if others are present during the interviews, and the presence of VMI counsel will compromise the investigative privilege that otherwise applies here. Accordingly, the Team has indicated to VMI and its counsel that neither VMI personnel nor its representatives are welcome during the Team's interviews (virtual or on-post) and that VMI's continued insistence otherwise or attempts to delay the Team's investigation efforts would be seen as uncooperative. VMI's counsel has responded with a proposal that all interviewees be "given the option" to have VMI's counsel present in interviews. The Team finds this solution just as problematic and undermining of the audit's objectives, if not more so, than having VMI counsel present for all interviews. The Team has asked Eckert why VMI wants its counsel in the room during interviews, but Eckert has not provided a clear answer and in doing so has cited matters of attorney-client privilege. VMI and the Team are still working through this issue.

Another issue is the prospect of VMI discipline of investigation participants. To encourage interviewees (especially cadets and faculty) to cooperate candidly with the audit, the Team has asked VMI's leadership to commit that it would not take disciplinary action against cadets, faculty, or administrators or otherwise take action against any member of the VMI community based on information revealed during the interviews. The Team and VMI are working through some initial disagreement on how to deal with this issue. As it stands now, VMI has given the Team its commitment not to pursue discipline for facts disclosed in interviews. VMI has also agreed to work with the Team to develop a joint statement that will, among other things, encourage cadets and other interviewees to be forthcoming and confirming that VMI will not attempt to discern the identity of individuals confidentially disclosing relevant data during the investigation.

V. Documents produced by VMI

After the January 15 meeting described above, VMI provided the Special Investigation Team with various background materials about VMI. Those documents are largely publicly available. A list of the categories of documents is included as Exhibit 1.

The Team has also submitted an initial list of document requests to VMI. These requests include priority document requests, including those that relate to the Honor Court and to other cadet disciplinary systems. At present, VMI has indicated that it is gathering documents responsive to these requests, but that VMI will not release the responsive documents until its counsel has approved the release and all ancillary legal issues have been resolved. The Team and VMI's counsel began discussing the document requests today (February 4). An index tracking the first round of document requests, current as of February 3, is attached as Exhibit 2.

VI. Survey

The Special Investigation Team has prepared a survey that it intends to send to current cadets, faculty and administration, and alumni. The Team had planned to interview certain members of VMI's administration before launching the survey, to learn about past surveys the administration has disseminated. But given the events that have significantly delayed this investigation, and the importance to using survey results to guide further investigation work, the Team will likely be forced to forgo this step and speak to the relevant administrators after the survey is in the field.

VII. Focus groups

The Special Investigations Team has also developed a strategy for conducting focus groups on post at VMI. The implementation of this effort is also on hold pending VMI resolving the status of counsel and allowing the Team access to post.

VIII. Telephone number and email for contacting the Special Investigation Team

To provide avenues for members of the VMI community to reach out to the Team, the Team has created both a telephone hotline and an email address to enable any individual to contact the Team. These two avenues will allow individuals to contact the Team, and to do so anonymously if they wish. The telephone number is (202) 831-6777 and the email address is VMIRewiew@btlaw.com.

The Team is developing an informational graphic to share with the VMI community to explain who the Team is, to provide the hotline information, and to encourage individuals to reach out to the Team if they have any information relevant to this audit.

IX. Conclusion

The Special Investigation Team will continue with the audit and expects to make further progress once issues surrounding the status of VMI's counsel and the Team's ability to interview cadets and faculty are resolved. The next written progress report will be submitted on March 8, 2021.
