Friends,

Yesterday, as I'm sure you've heard, the Supreme Court blocked the Biden administration's unconstitutional Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) vaccine mandate for employers across the country in a 6-3 ruling.

TWEET: Freedom prevails

The Court's decision is undoubtedly a massive win for freedom. Employers across the country were facing heavy fines based solely on their employees' private health decisions. Make no mistake, this mandate threatened an estimated 84 million Americans' livelihoods.

It's none of Biden's business whether you are vaccinated or not. The same goes for unelected bureaucrats in Washington. But that goes to the heart of this entire issue -- OSHA employees are not elected lawmakers. They subverted Congress' will and essentially wrote their own laws. Conveniently, no Democrat had to put their name on such an unamerican law.

This decision is a win for freedom and a giant step toward restoring our liberties. But it was also a massive loss for President Biden's agenda.

Biden spent months trying to bully businesses into obeying his mandates, and apparently, he still hasn't given up. It speaks to the divisiveness of his entire agenda. Biden began his first year in office promising to be a unifying President. But he ended his first year by losing a major decision at the Supreme Court, a policy that would've destroyed millions of Americans' healthcare freedoms.

Americans deserve better than a President who seeks to put them out of work for not obeying his commands, or one that tries to create a two-tiered society based upon vaccination status. I will always stand against the divisiveness and tyranny we are seeing from this current administration.

Democrats Attempt Election Takeover

Also, in Washington yesterday, Democrats passed a radical bill seeking to completely overthrow our nation's electoral system. Speaker Pelosi pushed this bill in hopes that the Senate will take it up and use its failure to nuke the filibuster.

While the bill passed the House yesterday, Senators deflated talks of ending the filibuster. But the problem is that we came dangerously close to federalizing our election process right before the midterms. Rather than face voters this November, Democrats want to rig election rules in their favor so they can stay in power in perpetuity.

From the House Floor, I stood firmly against Democrats' efforts yesterday. I told my colleagues that Democrats "assure you that if you put all the control of elections into their hands in Washington, they will save democracy for you. It calls to mind the iconic Vietnam era phrase: We had to burn the village to save it."

"America that's Democrats' message to you. They will burn your democracy to the ground in order to save it."
