

Requests for VOA Material – Frequently Asked Questions

What sort of VOA programming is available for use in the United States?

All programs broadcast on or after July 2, 2013 are available upon request, unless we're restricted by licensing agreements with third-party copyright holders. Such programs (e.g., full length television and radio episodes) may already be available on voanews.com for download.

UNDER U.S. LAW, VOA IS NOT PERMITTED TO DISTRIBUTE IN THE UNITED STATES CONTENT PRODUCED PRIOR TO JULY 2, 2013.

However, copies of this content may be available through the National Archives and Records Administration (archives.gov). Please contact NARA with any requests for VOA content produced prior to July 2, 2013, or with questions about specific VOA content that is available from NARA.

Can I get access to VOA programming for personal use?

VOA makes program materials available within the U.S. through the same news and information websites that VOA uses to communicate with its global audiences. To access currently available program materials, please visit voanews.com and click on the Usage Request tab at the bottom of the page.

Are all VOA programs available on VOAnews.com?

Please note that voanews.com links to VOA's many individual language service websites. Click the 'Sites by Language' tab at the top of the page to see the full range of languages available. Many programs and news stories are only available on the site for the language service which broadcast those materials abroad.

Does VOA make its programming available to the media or other organization on an ongoing subscription basis?

Yes. VOA and the USAGM Office of Business Development evaluates ongoing subscription requests based on the broadcasting principles and standards found in The U.S. International Broadcasting Act. For more information on the criteria used to determine whether VOA fulfills an ongoing subscription request, see USAGM's policy linked here from the Broadcasting Administrative Manual.

Can the media or other organizations get ongoing access to VOA programming for professional use?

Media entities, or other organizations, may request ongoing subscriptions by filling out an application form found on the USAGMdirect.com, the USAGM's professional distribution system. Expect a representative from USAGM to contact you about your application.

Will I be charged for accessing VOA programming through the Direct System?

USAGM may collect a fee for reimbursement of the reasonable costs incurred to fulfill a request for program materials, including ongoing subscriptions for the media and one-time requests for copies of USAGM's program materials. Any fees will be outlined in an agreement between the media entity, or other organization, and USAGM.

Are there special terms of use for accessing VOA programming on its websites?

Yes. By accessing Agency websites, Requestors agree to the respective Terms of Use available at: voanews.com/terms-use-and-privacy-notice, or direct.voanews.com.

I can't find an older episode on VOA websites. What happened to it?

From time to time, VOA removes content from its website. For instance, VOA removes program materials from its websites when required by licensing agreements with third-party copyright holders. Once materials have been removed from one of VOA's websites, they are no longer available from VOA.

When VOA takes materials off of its websites, materials designated as permanent under the USAGM's records schedule will be transferred to the National Archives and Records Administration (NARA). Programs designated as temporary under the USAGM's records schedule will be permanently deleted once they are removed from VOA websites, and will no longer be available. USAGM's records schedule is published in the Federal Register and is available at NARA's website, through this link. See Title 36 Code of Federal Regulations, Subpart F for information on how to request USAGM program materials that have been transferred to NARA.

Where can I find details about VOA programs, times, satellites?

VOA news content is available in more than 40 languages.

Radio & TV Program Listings found here.

TV Satellite Schedule found here.

Can I get free VOA news summary via e-mail?

VOA offers a free newsletter via email. Subscribe to our daily newsletter Today@VOA here.

Can I read VOA news on my mobile phone?

To find VOA news content in a format optimized for mobile phones and PDA's, use your device's Internet browser and navigate to: voanews.com. Then select your desired language.

There is also the VOA mobile app, which is available for Android and iPhones/iPads.