HOW THE THREE LITTLE PIGS COULD HAVE SAVED THEIR HOMES

On a windy day in Piggyville, word spread throughout the town that the Big Bad Wolf was visiting for his next meal. The Three Little Pigs each ran to their houses and were worried about the Big Bad Wolf coming to their doors. The wolf was very powerful, and with one strong blow he could knock down their homes and catch them!

The first little pig made his house out of sticks. He knew the Big Bad Wolf liked to visit Piggyville, but he used sticks anyway. He didn't know what to use instead to protect himself. Sure enough, the Big Bad Wolf came knocking on his door. "Let me in!" said the wolf. When the first little pig said no, the wolf huffed, and he puffed and he blew the house of sticks down! The little pig scurried away to his sister's house before the wolf could catch him.

The second little pig made her house of straw. While she knew straw was not the best material to protect herself against the Big Bad Wolf, she did not know what else to use. Sure enough, the Big Bad Wolf came knocking on her door. "Let me in!" said the wolf. When the two little pigs said no, the wolf huffed, and he puffed and he blew the house of straw down! The little pigs scurried away to their brother's house before the wolf could catch them.

The third little pig made his house of bricks. He lived in the town next to Piggyville. The mayor of the town told the third little pig that everyone in this town makes their houses out of bricks to protect themselves from the Big Bad Wolf. The mayor said it was called a Building Code, and it was for everyone's safety. Sure enough, the Big Bad Wolf came knocking on his door. "Let me in!" cried the wolf. When the three little pigs said no, the wolf huffed, and he puffed, but he could not blow the house of bricks down! They were safe! "Thank goodness your town had a Building Code," said the two little pigs to their brother. "Or else we could've been lunch!"
