EDUCATION FOR JUSTICE

UNODC

The Doha Declaration:
PROMOTING A CULTURE
OF LAWFULNESS

Maintaining peaceful and inclusive societies is at the core of the Sustainable Development Goals (SDG16) and promotes the understanding and respect for the rule of law.

A robust education system is central to this, playing a vitally important role in instilling the shared values necessary for the rule of law in communities.

The Education for Justice (E4J) initiative, under UNODC's Global Programme for the Implementation of the Doha Declaration, recognized the need for easily accessible resources on rule of law topics. As a result, the E4J Library of Resources has been created. The library is a comprehensive database, which is free of charge. It contains existing, relevant and age-appropriate educational materials for primary, secondary and tertiary levels of education.

The variety of content makes the E4J Library of Resources a one-stop source where users can browse and discover inspirational materials as well as quickly find specific information.

A WIDE ARRAY OF CONTENT

INCLUDING:

- AUDIO-VISUAL MATERIALS
- E-LEARNING TOOLS
- GAMES & ROLE-PLAY ACTIVITIES
- FULL LESSON PLANS
- HANDBOOKS, PUBLICATIONS & ARTICLES
- TEACHING TOOLS & COURSES

These materials are intended to assist educators' lesson planning on a range of themes including integrity and ethics, human rights and civic education, crime prevention and criminal justice, anti-corruption, organized crime, human trafficking and migrant smuggling, firearms, cybercrime, wildlife, forest and fisheries crime, and counter-terrorism.

The E4J Library of Resources is continuously growing and expanding. It contains over 5,000 materials in several languages and covers a wide array of countries and regions globally.

If you would like to stay up-to-date, suggest additional content, or even contribute your own original materials to the Library of Resources, please feel free to contact us through our website or via email: unodc-e4j@un.org
